The Global Fund

To Fight AIDS, Tuberculosis and Malaria

Chief of Operations

The Global Fund to Fight AIDS, Tuberculosis and Malaria is a global public-private partnership dedicated to raising and disbursing large amounts of additional finance to prevent and treat the three pandemics.

The Global Fund has so far committed US $4.5 billion to over 350 programs in 130 countries, and is managed by a Secretariat based in Geneva. Reporting directly to the Executive Director and Deputy Executive Director, the Chief of Operations has overall responsibility for the leadership of the Global Fund Operations Team and the management of the grant portfolio and country operations.

The Role:

- Ensures effective management and leadership across the Operations Team to deliver on objectives.
- Builds strong collaborative relationships with countries, technical partners, donors and other stakeholders to support Global Fund operations and rapid implementation of grants.
- Leads the development/implementation of operational policy and innovation to ensure the effective and sustained implementation of the operational model in a changing environment.
- Works closely with other parts of the organization to realize the objectives of the Global Fund.

The Candidate:

- Demonstrated experience and ability to manage large scale operations and teams in a multi-cultural work environment.
- Substantive work experience in program planning and implementation in developing countries.
- Technical expertise in development program design and operations and development finance.
- An inspiring leader and networker.
- A strong team player and consensus builder.

This position carries a competitive salary and benefits package net of tax, with diplomatic privileges.
